Molten Corporation (Headquarters: Hiroshima, Japan; President and CEO: Kiyoo Tamiaki), a manufacturer of competition quality sports balls and equipment, will supply the official ball for the 23rd IHF Women's Handball World Championship 2017.

The biennial global event will be hosted by Germany and run from December 1 through 17 of 2017. The official game ball, the X5000 Germany 2017 Edition, as well as replica models will be available for purchase in select markets from the end of June of 2017.

Molten's renowned X5000 elite handball series is the official ball of the International Handball Federation (IHF) and is used in all IHF sanctioned international competitions. The new X5000 Germany 2017 Edition handball features a custom design that will be exclusive to the 2017 championship event. This will be the second time that Molten has provided an official ball featuring an exclusive event design for the IHF Women's Handball World Championship - the first time was for Denmark 2015.

Molten will continue to develop and supply handball products of outstanding functionality and design for the handball community, and work to fulfill the Molten brand promise, "For the real game."

■ Product Features

1. Exclusive Official Game Ball Design

The X5000 Germany 2017 Edition features a bold color palette of black, red, and gold inspired by the flag colors of the host country, Germany. The ball prominently displays the official logo of the 23rd IHF Women's Handball World Championship.
